

Speakers will share their current research applications in immunology

Professor Shiv Pillai, PhD (Harvard Medical School)

Professor Pillai is one of the authors for the best-selling immunology text book “Cellular and Molecular Immunology”. His research focuses on investigations:

1) of immune system to treat cancer and to increase immunological memory 2) on how genetics and the environment affect lymphoid clones to drive common diseases and 3) on the development of new therapies for chronic diseases such as arthritis, lupus and IgG4-related diseases. The main discoveries in his lab include Btk inhibitors that are effective in B cell malignancies and in trials of autoimmunity as well as a novel way to strengthen immune responses and enhance helper T cell memory that provides hope for developing more effective personalized immune-system based treatments for cancer.

Professor Liew Foo Yew (University of Glasgow)

Professor ‘Eddy’ Liew’s research in immunology has revealed new regulatory pathways in the body’s defences against infection. This has clarified how the body strikes a balance between destroying infectious agents and avoiding damage to its own tissues, and opened the way to new and more effective therapies for conditions including rheumatoid arthritis and sepsis. During his career, Professor Liew has made important breakthroughs, including the discovery of T cell heterogeneity, which led to a greater understanding and treatment of the disease Leishmaniasis, and pinpointing the role that Nitric Oxide plays in regulating the body’s immune system.

Vision

To extend the knowledge on recent developments in immunology and to contribute to insight in scientific questions and approaches in immunological research.

Key Topics

Molecules (MHC, antigen receptors, co-stimulatory molecules, adhesion molecules), mediators (cytokines, chemokine, hormones) & cells (T and B lymphocytes, antigen-presenting cells, innate cells) involved in immune responses against infectious diseases, cancer, autoimmunity and allergy.

Audience

This 5-day programme is designed for biomedical students, clinicians, academicians and scientists who wish to acquire an extensive knowledge and skills in the field of immunology and its applications in research and therapy. The course will be delivered by world leaders at the forefront of immunology, immunoparasitology and immunotherapy research.
